Addendum 1
Risk Management Services Incident Report Summary – August 2017
University of British Columbia (Okanagan Campus) Health and Safety Committee
September 25, 2017

1. Staff Accident/Incident Reports - Injury Reported - Aug 29 - Sept 24, 2017:
2.
 - Aug 31st: A worker was obtaining a part for a task from a shelf in a department storage room. There were four stacked items obstructing access to the shelf so the worker moved them one-by-one. The items were heavier than expected. The worker moved the first three without issue but when he went to move the fourth (and lowest), he experienced immediate back pain. Campus Security was called to provide first aid treatment but the worker refused, preferring to engage in stretching. When the stretching did not seem to improve the pain, he went to Campus Security to report the injury. A healthcare-only WorkSafeBC claim has been accepted for the injury.
 - Sept 6th: Folding chairs were rented for two large events in the Gymnasium, but clips to attach the chairs were not ordered. Due to tight timelines, cable ties were used to affix the chairs together in time for the first event. Some of the chairs then needed to be realigned for the second event; during this process, a worker was cutting some of the cable ties downwards with a knife. One tie was very tight so he cut it upwards when the knife slipped and cut his thumb. A healthcare-only WorkSafeBC claim has been accepted for the injury.
2. Staff Accident/Incident Reports - No Injury Reported - Aug 29 - Sept 24, 2017:
 - Aug 29th: An excavator bucket punctured a natural gas line outside of the Mountain Weather Office. Contractors were hand-digging to expose the line so it could be re-located as part of a landscape/parking lot renovation project. The line was almost fully exposed but there was one boulder that couldn't be moved with hand tools (shovel and pry-bar were used). The contractor crew brought in their mini-excavator to attempt to dislodge the boulder enough that hand tools could be used to complete to removal. While attempting to loosen the boulder, the excavator bucket slipped off the top of the boulder and fell, cutting the gas line. All machines on the site were immediately de-energized and Fortis as well as 911 were called. The site supervisor for the contractor entered the MWO and swept the building to evacuate it but did not activate the fire alarm due to concerns of possibly igniting any natural gas that may have entered the building. The supervisor then contacted WorkSafeBC. After a short amount of time, two additional UBC workers emerged from the MWO; they were not notified in the evacuation sweep but learned of the gas leak from a co-worker who communicated to them via cellphone from a different part of campus. Fortis BC attended the incident site and crimped the natural gas line. No injuries resulted and no additional damage occurred. The odour of Mercaptan was not detected inside any part of the MWO at any point during the span of this incident.
 - Aug 31st: Workers were mounting a television to a wall as part of a renovation project. The wall area had been pre-prepped for mounting with the placement of a sheet of plywood that the mounting hardware would go into, with power and data conduits running vertically behind the plywood. While drilling the mounting screws, one of the screws penetrated one of the conduits causing the associated breaker to flip off. No injury occurred to either worker. The 2.75" screws being used were the ones that came with the TV's mounting hardware; these are much longer than required in this type of mounting setup as the plywood is less than 1" thick, plus their length adds risk of penetrating the conduits.
 - Sept 1st: A worker went into a clean room facility to return chemicals removed during the facility's recent expansion. He then opened up the storage location and noticed the piranha solution (very acidic and strong oxidizing solution used to clean organic residues off substrates) was not on its labeled shelf. He looked around trying to locate it (or the empty bottle in case it had been disposed of) but was unable to locate bottle. He then looked in the flammables cabinet to be thorough. He found the piranha solution stored inside the flammables cabinet with flammable solvents and other organics (incompatible storage). He then immediately removed the bottle and returned it to its proper storage location.

- Sept 15th: A worker opened a flammables cabinet and noticed a spill. He reported the spill immediately to a lab technician. The lab technician went to view the spill, he noticed that a container had failed and the contents were leaking within the cabinet. After referencing the SDS for the leaking fluid, he put the leaking container in secondary containment and cleaned the spill. He then sent a request for waste pickup. It is possible that the original container the product was delivered in had failed. Regular inspections help to reduce the amount of time that passes before a leak like this is detected and dealt with.

4. Statistics - Aug 29 - Sept 24, 2017:
